Sewing pattern #0225a Bathing Cap around 1900

A bathing cap around 1900:

(1) Take the top and double-turn in the straight edge narrow, stitch in place (n). Sew two rows of gathering threads along the curved edge (o).

Take the headband and fold in half lengthwise, wrong sides together, press and reopen (p). Turn in the seam allowance along the inner edge, press and reopen (q).

Sew the headband to the top, matching all marks (r). To do so, pull the gathering threads and spread the width of the top evenly. Press the seam allowances towards the headband.

(2) Take the strips for the bow and fold in half lengthwise, right sides together. Sew along the angled and the long edge (s), reducing the stitch length at the edges.

Trim back the seam allowances and turn the right way out, press (t).

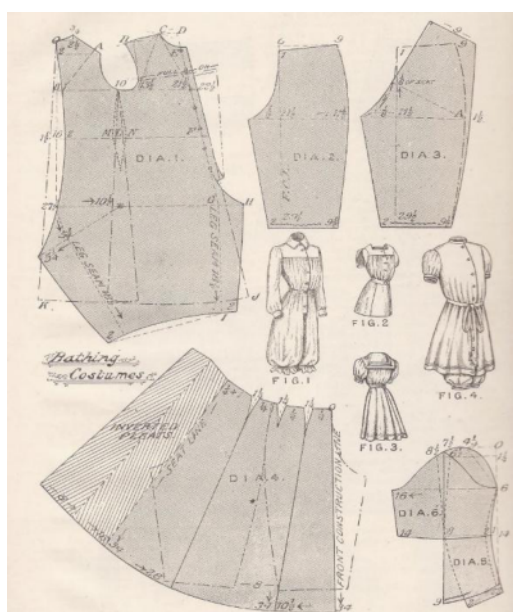

Fold the bow strips to match the width of the headband (2" (5cm)) along the open edge (u). Line up with the headband's short edge, and fold the headband's wrong sides together along the previously pressed-in edge, sandwiching the bow strip (v). Stitch along the short edge, then pivot and stitch down the long edge of the headband, without catching the bow strip, until reaching the top seam (w).

Trim back the seam allowance and turn the right way out. Press and line up the inner edge of the headband with the stitching line of the top (x). Fell stitch in place (y) – see collar.

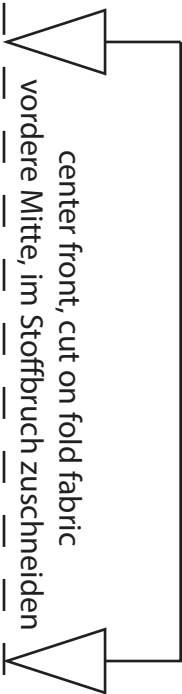

This pattern is part of my pattern #0225, where you'll find the matching bathing suit, based on the original pattern from "The Cutter's Practical Guide" from about 1900.
